

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

In this chapter, the writer presents conclusions and suggestions based on the research findings. The first part contains conclusions or answers based on the research results to answer the research questions. The second part contains some suggestions for future researchers and readers related to the analysis of the main character and how Costa's psychological theory can reveal the main character's personality in his problems in the movie "Searching" directed by Aneesh Chaganty and released in 2018.

5.1 Conclusion

This research focuses on analyzing the characterization of the main character in the movie Searching named David Kim. In analyzing the data, the writer uses Paul Costa's personality traits theory which contains 5 main domains namely neuroticism, extraversion, openness, agreeableness, and conscientiousness with each consisting of 6 facets. Personality traits themselves are traits or personalities that we have in the form of feelings, behaviors, and mind-sets that are shown in various situations and conditions. For this reason, the author would like to conclude that the 5 domains and 6 facets or what can be found of the personality traits theory have an influence on how David Kim behaves as the main character in an effort to find his missing daughter.

1. Neuroticism. Twenty five pieces of evidence were found from Anxiety, Angry Hostility, Depression, and Self-Consciousness facets. The four facets illustrate several sides of David Kim. First, David Kim is prone to feeling worried, anxious, and agitated every time he hears information related to his daughter's case. Second, he also has high emotions and often the anger is shown even when communicating with others to extract information related to his daughter. Sometimes he also uses violence when his emotions have peaked and hurt others. Thirdly, he occasionally shows hopelessness, guilty, and frustration when he feels that he did not manage to fully know his daughter completely until it became a serious case. Fourth, however, David Kim can feel shame and realize his careless actions after being warned by someone.

2. Extraversion. Six pieces of evidences were found from warmth and positive emotions facets. First, David Kim can give his care and affection as a father to his daughter by giving encouragement and praise. Secondly, David Kim looks feel the happiness and joy of himself when his small family was still complete. It was worse when Pamela Nam Kim passed away, but after the incident Margot Kim disappeared. David Kim could try to pay more attention to his daughter.
3. Openness. One piece of evidence was found from feelings facets. After Pam's death, David Kim was apparently not very sensitive to his daughter's emotional state. He was not active in asking Margot Kim about her feelings and thoughts after her mother died.
4. Agreeableness. Eleven pieces of evidence were found from trust, altruism, and compliance facets. First, David Kim has two beliefs where he believes in the concern of other family members and Detective Vick who handles his daughter's case, but he also does not believe when he gets some information about his daughter obtained because he believes his daughter is not a person who acts badly. Second, David Kim is a person who cares about others besides himself, especially about health. He tries to take care of his sick wife and reminds Peter of his smoking habit. Third, rather than arguing, David Kim prefers to back down and forget what happened when it is said also requested by others.
5. Conscientiousness. Ten pieces of evidence were found from order, dutifulness, self-discipline, and deliberation facets. First, David Kim is a neat and organized person when it comes to cleanliness. He does not hesitate to remind others to maintain cleanliness. Second, before the case happened, David Kim did not forget to ask about his daughter's activities. After the case occurred, he was really ready to wait for information on the progress of his daughter's case and did everything he could to find clues to his daughter's whereabouts which showed his responsibility as a father. Third, he is a person who is able to carry out his duties or work to completion despite the distractions in the form of awkward situations and worries about his daughter. Fourth, David Kim is able to hold back his words or think twice about his actions in front of his daughter but sometimes not with others especially when his anger is peaked.

From the five domains, the neuroticism domain is most prominent in the analysis of David Kim's personality throughout the movie. Anxiety, anger, sadness, despair, frustration and feel guilty are the core of the neuroticism domain which refers to negative emotions. David Kim not only feels them within himself but he also shows these negative emotions to the people around him. He is not able to keep these negative emotions inside or bottled up inside himself considering what he is facing is a very serious problem.

It can be concluded that from the beginning of the movie, David Kim is shown to be happy. David Kim also has no trouble being a father and husband who is close to his family. He is even very active and attentive by recording every important moment or other things such as when helping his wife to recover from lymphoma and providing support to Margot at her piano performances. Unfortunately, that only lasted until his wife passed away. David Kim remained a responsible father but there was a noticeable difference. He was very lost and unhappy. In addition, he also found it awkward or difficult to communicate with Margot who was starting to grow up. However, when Margot's disappearance happened, David Kim really showed a father who was not only responsible, he was also willing to do anything so that his daughter could be found. Although, there are times when his anxiety and anger can make him unable to control himself and hurt someone. Again, we see the side of David Kim's concern that is so great once he finds various information from Margot's behaviour outside of his knowledge. He was able to feel regret in his heart that he could not be a good father to his daughter. After his daughter was found, we can see the situation and communication between David Kim and Margot Kim began to improve. David Kim tried to improve what he missed to be a better father to Margot Kim.

5.2 Suggestion

In connection with research on the analysis of the main character of Searching, the author would like to provide suggestions so that this research can still be researched by others and is expected to use this research as a foundation or additional reference by developing problems from different perspectives and understood by future readers. Related to personality matters, next researchers can use other psychological theories or different theories sourced from various books and journals so that it can facilitate the analysis process. Researchers hope that readers can take moral values from this study where parental supervision and attention are very important for children whether in happy or downtrodden conditions. In Addition, researchers also expect that there is supervision and guidance not only for children but also parents so that they can monitor and use the internet wisely.

SYNOPSIS

In San Jose, California, there is a small family of David Kim and Pamela Nam Kim with one daughter named Margot Kim. All the events of Margot Kim's growing up were documented by David Kim and looked very happy and harmonious. It did not last long, Pamela Nam Kim received news that she had lymphoma and had to get further treatment. She recovered, but Pamela Nam Kim's health worsened as Margot Kim grew up. She soon passed away, leaving only David Kim and Margot Kim. Both of them live their days without Pamela Nam Kim. Longing was seen when David still continued to see photos and videos of his late wife. One day on FaceTime with David, Margot said that she was studying in a group at her friend's house. At night, Margot was seen calling David Kim three times but there was no response from David Kim who had fallen asleep.

The next morning, David tried to contact Margot again but there was no response. He waited until the afternoon with various messages but there was no reply. He decided to contact Margot's piano tutor but instead he got information that Margot had canceled her lessons six months ago. In addition, David also contacted Mrs. Isaac who was an acquaintance of Pamela. From this information it was known that Margot might have been on the mountain with Isaac but after being reconfirmed by Isaac, this was not true. David felt that this was very odd because he continued to give Margot considerable money and was accepted by Margot plus Margot did not give him any information on the day after the group study. David, who realized Margot was missing, decided to contact the police and the case was handled by Detective Rosemary Vick. Vick asked David for any information about Margot. David tried to access Margot's Facebook and contact people on it, but it turned out that no one was actually friends with Margot. Vick called David to report that Margot had created a fake identity, sent $2,500 in piano lesson money to her Venmo account, and traffic footage was seen showing Margot's car going to an out-of-town highway intersection. This suggests that there is a possibility that Margot is laundering money and trying to escape.

David, who did not believe that Margot did such a thing, searched Margot's other social media until he found a Vlogging site called YouCast. He got a number of videos of Margot filming herself and often interacting with one of the working girl accounts called fish-and-chip. After being investigated by Vick, fish-and-chip was found to have nothing to do with Margot's disappearance and she could be found in Pittsburgh. David then looked at Margot's Instagram and he realized there was one place Margot often visited, namely Lake Barbosa which was close to the highway intersection. David Kim drove straight to the spot at 3am and reported to Vick. During the FaceTime conversation, David Kim showed Margot's Pokemon keychain around the lake. Moments later, the police arrived at the scene and conducted further searches until they found Margot's car that had sunk underwater. Inside the car, an envelope containing $2,500 was found.

Further searches were conducted by the police, David Kim and local volunteers who helped search for Margot's whereabouts. However, poor weather conditions slowed down the search process. David reviewed the photos of Margot's car and noticed his brother Peter's jacket in the car. He also found suspicious text messages between Margot and Peter. Sensing something was wrong, David went to Peter's house and almost got into a huge fight. Peter explains that they both smoked marijuana together. Peter also said that David was an incompetent father for not knowing that his daughter was depressed after her mother died. A phone call from Vick broke the silence of the situation at that moment. Vick said that he had arrested an ex-convict named Randy Cartoff who had confessed on a video that he had sexually assaulted and killed Margot. However, he later committed suicide. A funeral with an empty casket was arranged for Margot.

When David uploaded some photos of Margot to the funeral video service, he realized the photo of the woman on the service's website was the same as the profile picture of the woman on the fish-and-chips account. He then searched for her identity and contacted her but she denied any of his questions. David tries to contact Vick but an operator picks up the phone and accidentally reveals that Vick himself volunteered to work on Margot's case. David went back to Google Vick's detective identity and discovered that Vick knew Randy Cartoff in a volunteer program for ex-convicts. David immediately reported this to the sheriff and Vick was arrested while attending Margot's funeral.

A few days later, Vick confessed to the murder and other crimes in exchange for leniency for his son Robert. Vick said that his son used the fish-and-chips identity to get close to Margot, as he had long been attracted to her. Robert devised a fake story where he was a working girl whose mother was hospitalized. Margot, hooked on his sob story, sent $2,500 to Robert. Robert who felt guilty tried to meet Margot at the lake but they fought. Robert accidentally pushed Margot into the ravine and he immediately contacted his mother. Vick who knew about it tried to cover up the case by proposing herself to handle Margot's case. She falsified information about Margot making a fake identity and fish-and-chips in Pittsburgh. When she finds out that David found Margot's pokemon keychain in the lake, Vick is forced to make Randy Cartoff a scapegoat to cover up her previous statement.

During the process of Vick being arrested and transported to prison, David asked where Margot's body was and Vick replied that Margot was in the ravine. Although Margot survived the fall, she would not survive 5 days without drinking. David immediately told the police to turn the car around to search the ravine. In the ravine, the rescue crew found Margot badly injured but still alive.

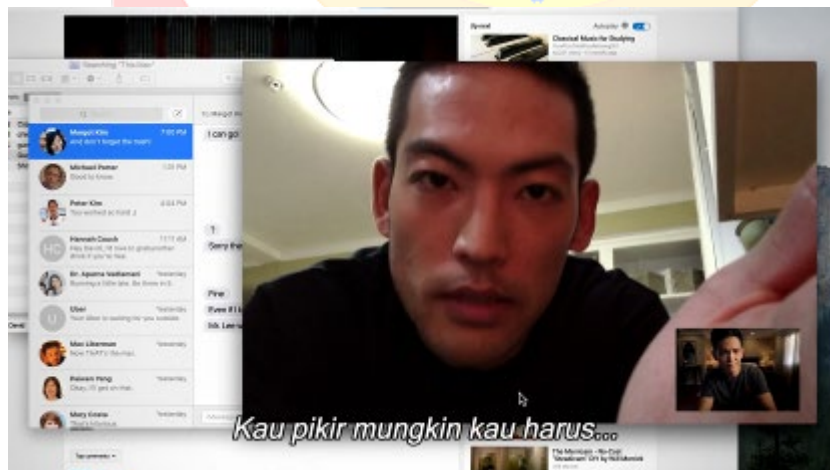

Two years later, Margot is known to have resumed her piano lessons with a pending status. David sent a message in the form of a photo together with Margot in a wheelchair. There was laughter in the text message. Before turning off her computer, Margot used the photo as a background for her computer screen. This shows that David and Margot's relationship has improved significantly after the incident.

INT. ABBY'S STAIRCASE - EVENING (FACETIME VIDEO)

Margot does. She scurries to a hallway and-

MARGOT

What's up with the FaceTime?

INTERCUT DAVID/MARGOT'S FACETIME VIDEO CALL

DAVID

Oh, I'm glad you asked. What is wrong with this picture?

MARGOT

I'm about to be in trouble, aren't I?

DAVID

Yes.

David steps out of the frame to reveal an overflowing trash can behind him. Margot now knows exactly what she forgot.

MARGOT

Yup

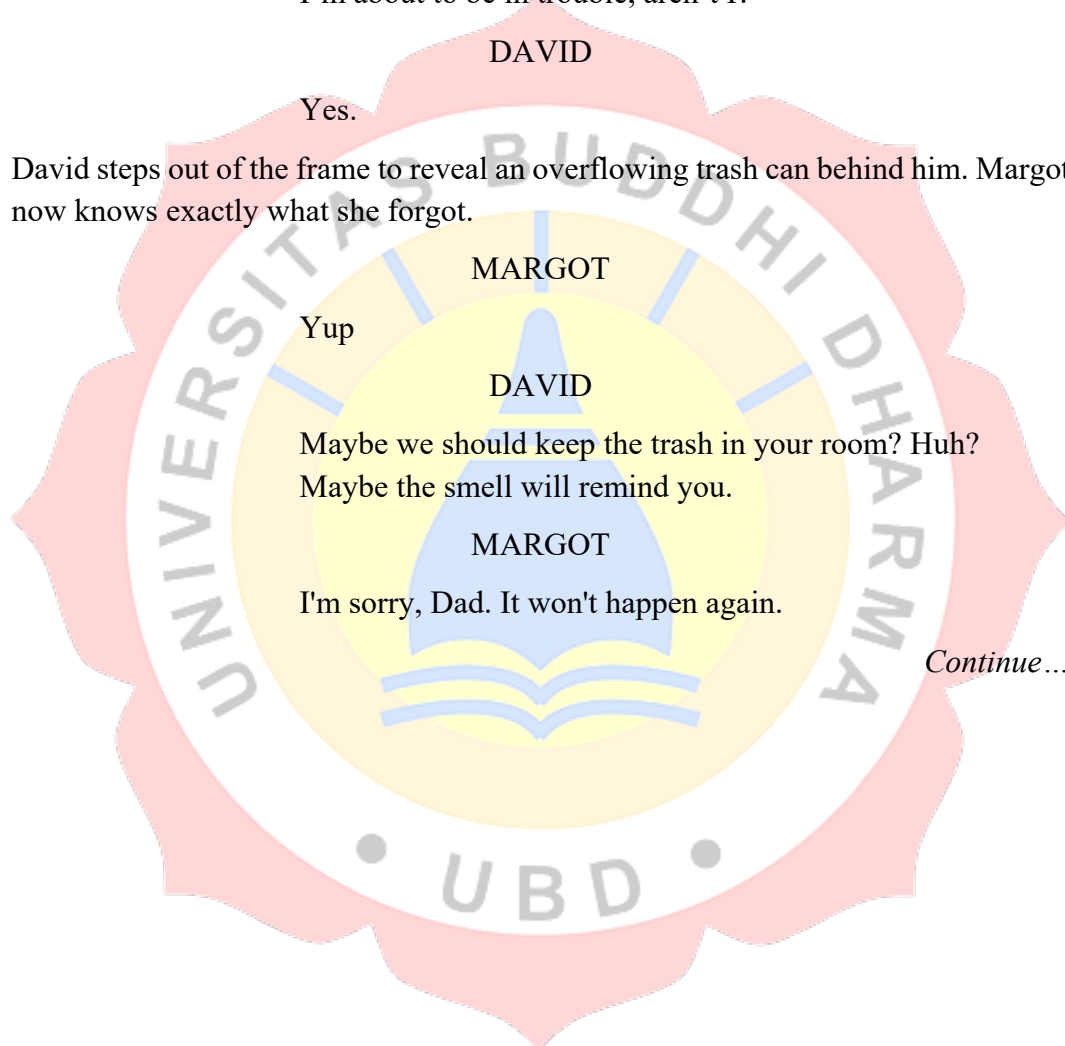

DAVID

Maybe we should keep the trash in your room? Huh?
Maybe the smell will remind you.

MARGOT

I'm sorry, Dad. It won't happen again.
